

WE NOMINATE

The 340-plus members of The League of Women Voters of The Princeton Community, whose combined volunteer efforts are once again making it possible for the Princeton Area to gain clearer insights into public affairs through a broad-gauged program concerned with "the realities" rather than with the "Cloud 9 aspirations" of assorted political candidates. At the time of year when leaf-smoke, football and politics are in the air, the hard-working Princeton League, rounding out its 29th year of service, is reaching what one observer terms "a peak of activity in its main task: to bring the facts and the voters together."

Over the fortnight ahead, with the aim of providing the citizen with basic information and thereby stimulating voter turn-out on Election Day, the League will sponsor three major Candidates' Meetings (see Topics of the Town and Calendar of the Week) and will distribute free-of-charge throughout Borough and Township the annual Election Information Sheet, year after year "must reading" in 100's of Princeton households. As highly significant, as time-consuming, and as costly as these election-season undertakings are, they represent only one part of the League's overall operations on the local, state and national levels.

Chartered nationally in 1920 with the ratification of the 19th Amendment (Women's Suffrage) to the U.S. Constitution, and the direct descendant of the single-minded National American Woman Suffrage Association, the League from the beginning has been an articulate lobby in the public interest. It is non-partisan. As a past president of the Princeton League stresses, "it takes action in support of, or in opposition to, selected governmental issues; however, it does not support or oppose candidates, nor does it support or oppose political parties." Nor will it permit an officer or Board member to participate "in active party work" while holding a League office!

The local League, one of 87 such organizations in New Jersey, drawing its membership from all segments of the Princeton Community, and functioning efficiently on an annual budget approximating $3,600, has contributed more to the public understanding of government than any combination of Princeton service groups. Its carefully edited series of publications, recently capped by the 6,000 "run" of the third edition of "Know Your Town," includes "Know Your School" (1956), the valued, now out-of-print "This Is Mercer County" (1953), and a continuing flow of study-pamphlets, covering a wide variety of topics of import.

Since World War II the League, adhering to a thoughtfully projected program falling into two main categories, "Current Agenda" and "Continuing Responsibilities," has compiled a remarkable record in defining key issues several years in advance of governmental action and, most often, well ahead of pronouncements by aspirants for public office. It was a long decade ago, for instance, that the League helped focus attention on the perennial question of Borough-Township Consolidation; while the League's deeply rooted concern for local recreation, including in part the concept of "Open Spaces," antedated by 9 years the halting development of the first Joint Borough-Township Recreation Advisory Committee.

For looking upon the "furtherance of individual political effectiveness" as a continuing obligation of our democratic society; for seeking to provide "intelligent and unselfish assistance" in areas in which opinions too frequently overshadow facts; for their dedication to the well-being of representative government; these women are TOWN TOPICS' nominees as

LIGHTS, LIGHTS . . .

McCarte Opens. With a minor traffic jam on University Place, a black tie or two in Row II and the contagious excitement of an opening night, Princeton's theatrical season will begin this Friday.

McCarte Theatre will open its third year as Princeton University's Center for the Performing Arts with a wistfully gay musical called "The Fan-tasticks," intended as something light for the palate before the "Mediterranean Heritage" series begins on November 1.

For the past two weeks, Mc-Carte Theatre, no longer part of the frenetic straw hat circuit each summer, has been vibrating with life. From the outside, the big stone and brick

AS OPENING NIGHT NEARS: Mrs. Ernest Gordon, chairman of the "Friends of McCarte Theatre," confers with William Roberts, scenery and costume designer, as new season approaches. For a report the intriguing and val-luminous behind-the-scenes activity, see below. (Staff Photo) building gives no hint of this, except for the open door, low on University Place, and the small knot of cars parked before the main entrance. Actors mostly walk.

Inside, simultaneous rehearsals are in progress for two productions. "The Fantasticks" and Shakespeare's "Comedy of Errors" and the belting pound of an upright piano accompanies the carpenters' power saw and the rhymed penmanship.
The musical is being worked into shape on the polished plywood floor of the basement rehearsal room, while Shakespeare gets Tenth Hardy's familiar Festival Stage upstairs.
(As a matter of fact, it was not until Tuesday of this week, four days before opening night, that "Fantasticks" saw the lights of McCarte's stage.)

Dual Roles. These dual rehearsals are familiar to actors who play in repertory and they will be the standard autumn fare of the professional Mc-Carte company, which has four productions to make ready in three and one-half weeks.
"Comedy of Errors" has been in rehearsal in tandem with "Fantasticks" because the Shakespeare will open for student audiences next Monday, although public performances will not begin until November 9.

Dressed in the Equally uniform of sweaters, slacks and sweater, the actors move from one rehearsal to another in an atmosphere that smells less of grease paint than of hot coffee in a paper cup. There is only one actor in "Comedy of Errors" who is not in "Fan-tasticks" and the exercise involving in racing down McCarte's back stairs from stage to basement is enough to keep any actor fit.

Millon Lyon, McCarte producer, directs the "Fantas-ticks" cast, sometimes doubling as accompanist on the piano. "That's why I like vegetables, you know what you're eating?" sing two fathers about their two progeny who are in love.

Mr. Altieri was unable to give the police any description of his assailants or their number. He only remembers, he said, being pulled into the alley and beaten. His inert form was discovered by Robert Myers of 102 Nassau Street who had parked his car in the yard behind Davidson's Market. Everett Campbell of Thurn's Pharmacy called the police.

Police have interviewed a number of people in the area but none say they saw Mr. Altieri.

"We are pulling together the work done by Jack Kendree, our consultant, and our various citizens' committees," explained Gerald Breese, chairman of the Planning Board. "Planning is really one large ball of wax, roads are linked with land use, and everything affects everything else. After we finished the last project, we may have to go back and revise the first, because of what we've learned in the process."

"Open Space," a road plan, location, standards of construction and sidewalk placement, land use—all these fall under planning scrutiny, plus business zoning, master plan and maps, planning objectives and policy, the tax implications inherent in Planning Board action and capital improvements.

"We are starting from a series of working papers prepared by Mr. Kendree and his back-up staff—that is, his research men," Mr. Breese says. "We feel that these so-called 'executive' sessions, when we can roll up our sleeves and try to decide what is the right thing to do, are essential. Once we get a firm plan, that is, as firm as we can hope for, then we hold all kinds of public hearings so that everyone can express his opinion."

"It's Important," Mr. Breese and his Planning Board colleagues regard land use as the basic question, and it is one on which the Board has spent a great deal of time.

"For example, is the return we would get from light industry worth the cost of providing services for it?" Mr. Breese said, commenting on the recent Planning Board report on light industry. "We have a hard time here in the Township competing with Route One. We have a Committee for Economic Development and they've been operating and they've had some inquiries. But if a firm can buy land on Route One with millions of people driving by every year, it is going to settle for a corner of Princeton Township."

He also referred to the Planning Board's responsibility for trying to make the kind of community Township residents want.

"What does the community want?" he asked. "It's not always easy to determine, but we do the best we can."

Fires to Fight? A planning board must walk a careful line between what Mr. Breese calls "fire-fighting" and long-range planning. "Fire-fighting" is the immediate emergency like the current situation between Borough and Township over the Borough's school plan.

"You must not get so wrapped up in emergencies that you lose the long planning view," Mr. Breese observed. He also said that a Planning Board expected facts and sound judgment from its consultant. "Some consultants produce what they hold you want them to produce," he said, "but we don't go with that. If we hire a consultant, we want a thorough study and his clear recommendation. Then we make a policy, always with the thought that planning is a continuing process... and that to some people some times, you're never right!"

WATTS' STORE ROBBED
At Gunpoint, Mary Watts' general store on Route 206 was robbed of $30 Sunday night by two armed men. Shortly before 10:30, the owner told Township police she was approached by the men, who carried revolvers and demanded the contents of her cash register. She emptied the drawer, handing over about $30 in bills and coins. Mrs. Watts described the robbers as Negroes, approximately 25 years old. She said that after the men left, she looked out a window but did not see a car.

BOND ISSUE BACKED
In Lawrence, Approval by better than 2 to 1 was given a $220,000 school bond issue Tuesday in Lawrence Township. The funds will be used to add eight classrooms to the Benjamin Franklin Elementary School. The vote was 641 in favor and 210 opposed. The turnout was just under 11 percent of the number registered. Amortization of the bonds over a 15-year period is scheduled. The tax increase for 1964 will be $21,000, requiring 70 cents more in taxes for every $1,000 of assessed valuation.

MEDICARE TALK SET
Congressman To Speak
Representative Frank Thompson will discuss medical care for the aged, Wednesday, October 24. The Democrat will speak at 8:30 at the Community Park School on Witherspoon Street. The program, known as Medicare, has caused physicians in Point Pleasant to threaten to refuse payment from patients using this plan. Passage of the bill in the Senate was defeated by a 52-48 vote.

John Hite and James Foley, Democratic candidates for Township Committee, will appear at the meeting to discuss their platforms. Open to all, the program is sponsored by the Princeton Democratic Forum.

ROLLER COASTERS HERE
With Lloyd Price. The Coasters, acknowledged by those in the right age bracket as a leading rock 'n' roll group, will make their Princeton debut in Dillon Gym this Friday at 9 along with Lloyd Price, the singer-bandleader who plans to bring along his 15-piece orchestra.

Tickets are on sale at the University Store and McCarter Theatre. Coasters' albums include such hits as "Peggy Sue," "Yakety Yak," "Charlie Brown," "Youngblood" and "Searchin'." Some of Price's sellers up in the millions bracket have been "Stagger Lee," "Personality," "Loudy Miss Clavdy" and "I'm Gonna Get Married."

Price mastered both piano and trumpet before turning to pop singing, leaving his native New Orleans to capitalize on all three talents. He has appeared on the Dick Clark and Ed Sullivan shows, and has made countless night club and campus appearances.

Folk music and blues will move in after rock 'n' roll when the journeymen and Carol Sloane come to town on Saturday, November 10. All these programs are given under the auspices of the McCarter Student Entertainment Bureau.

ONCE MORE, WITH FEELING: The professional singers who gather around the piano each Tuesday night for work-outs with the Princeton Opera Workshop relish every minute of their singing time. In the group picture above, Muriel Long sings Mozart as the group practices the first act of
Faye Tauber, Joyce Gill and Barbara Lamb. The director, back to camera, is Walter Blazer. Virginia Switten, lower right, studies the score of "La Bohème," while she waits to be called. Opera buffs and opera singers may learn more about these workshops in the story, this page. (Staff Photos)

EAGER FOR OPERA

Singers Come to Workshops.
The chance to sing Cio-Cin-San or Violetta, to stretch one's voice as Faust or Man-rico comes rarely to the professional singer in America, and even more rarely to the singer who lives in the Princeton area.

To provide a sounding board for professionals who are restricted by the difficulties of establishing a career in this country, a group of Princeton residents has formed the Princeton Opera Association.

Singers who join the association pay $5 a year for weekly workshop sessions in Puccini, Verdi, Mozart and Gounod, receiving for their dues the kind of coaching session for which a New York opera coach would charge about $50 a month. And they have a chance to sing later in a full-scale opera production.

The coach for these Princeton singers is Walter Blazer, an American singer who is keenly and personally aware of the problems facing American musicians because he sang successfully in opera houses off over Europe, but found that he could not gain a foothold in this country. At present, Mr.
Blazer is program director of WDIA-FM in Dover.

Come and Listen. Following the Opera Association's first auditions early this fall, 83 singers signed up as workshop members, gathering — but not all of them at once — at the Unitarian Church on Cherry Hill Road and Route 206 to spend each Tuesday evening with Verdi, Mozart — and Blazer.

For the next four weeks, the public is invited to attend these Tuesday workshops without charge. The Opera association hopes that non-singing opera buffs who listen in on these workshops will be so enlightened and impressed that they will join as "Guild Members," paying $2 per person, $3 per couple to support the work of the Association. Patrons pay $20, sponsors pay $100.

"To provide a financial backstop so that we can give these coaching sessions for only $5 a year, we need a broad-based community support," explains Dr. Roscoe Williams, dynamic young RCA scientist who helped to found and to launch the group, and now its president.

"We have about 270 members," paying $2 per person,
$3 per couple to support the work of the Association. Patrons pay $20, sponsors pay $100.

"Start Small." During the months when the opera association was still in the wicks, as to speak, Dr. Williams and his friends talked over their project with such diverse musical and theatre experts as William Scheide, Bach authority, and Milton Lyon, McCarter producer. Following their suggestions, the opera association decided against one mass "go-

Start $1.1k For You! The wallpaper you can buy today are so varied and exciting in texture, color, fabric and design that you're in danger of buying a different paper for each wall of the room, just to you want have to make a choice.

The Elctera Shop, newly opened at 273 Nassau Street, between Chestnut and Moray, not only has papers for you to pore over while you're in the shop, but can also obtain for you actual samples of paper, so that you can go home and hang up the blue to see whether it really is the right blue.

Among Elctera's many books, we were particularly impressed with a collection of Spanish cork papers ("Papel de Corcho") by Katzenbach and Warren) that would be splendid on a screen, or even as a mat for a picture.

To make this paper, Mr. Katzenbach (or Mr. Warren) has stripped the bark from the tree and mounted a thin sheet of it against a backing of linen, red, aqua, white, gold, silver, black or blue. The color shows through the small, uneven random holes that are characteristic of thin cork giving only a glimmer of color here and there, in a "one-of-a-kind" pattern. ($12 single roll, $13.50 for gold or silver.)

Gene McDonald's handprints will open for you an excellent world of color and custom design. Take a panel

"... button my shoe

Gentlemen who like to scoff at ladies' contemporary shoe styles, commenting gratuitously upon the pointed toe or the needle heel, and comparing them with grandma's sensible shoes, may learn a humble lesson by looking at the four pairs of real 100-year-old shoes now in the window of Nassau Shoe Tree on Palmer Square.

There are three pairs of ladies' boots with leather "shoes" and fabric or leather tops and lacing that goes all the way up to here, concealing the well-turned ankle, and mercifully hiding the thick sole. The fourth pair is a black leather button job with 15 buttons marching up the side like little black beetles.

All, of course, have pointed toes. All look as uncomfortable as the Dickens. All are, to put it delicately, unfattering. We suspect that gentlemen of the Civil War era looked at them askance and made superior remarks about the follies of ladies' fashion.

boys' clothes in the Eton manner, sizes 2 to 4, and 3 to 7 regular.

They start off, not with Etons, but with rugged little windbreakers in beige plaid with red flannel lining on blue corduroy with red, $6.50 and $6.95 and defiant against the wind. Match them off with a corduroy ensemble consisting of checked jacket and solid pants and cap. Costs $12 in navy.

With a jacket, a toddler size 3-6 could wear a pair of grey flannel overalls, bibbed and strapped. These are coming along, and may have been delivered by the time you read this. There are boys' slacks, too, for those who scorn the overall.

The favorite Eton is the red velvet one, size 2-4, with black velvet short pants. Lay this one away for Christmas morning. There is also, for the slightly larger 3-7, a red wool Eton with navy pants, and a navy with navy. White pearl buttons on all of these.

A red flannel blazer, with shield emblem standing for some kindergarten in sign e, probably, is $9.95 and could be worn with any of those slacks we referred to above.

For sweater weather, The Little Clothes Line is showing red or navy v-neck cardigans for small boys, knit with cable stitch. A v-neck slipover in white has the classic red and navy neck trim, and could be worn with the corduroy or flannel shorts.

now being done.

When the singers gather around the piano on Tuesday nights at the church, they work over six operatic selections, rehearsing them in rotation with double casts so that everybody has a chance.

In the workshop repertory are the first act of Mozart's
"Così fan Tutte" in English, acts three and four of Puccini's
"La Bohème" in Italian; the

To a professional singer,

the chance to sing
"Home to Our Mountains" in cage.

But there is more. As Dr.
Williams points out, the rich mine of American history and folklore has scarcely been touched by composers of opera, and the Princeton Opera Association has lofty ambitions along this line. It would like to commission an American opera from an American composer. "How about an opera on the 'Mammy'?" Dr. Williams suggests, with enthusiasm that every two or three years, it could prove just what Amer-

PLAYHOUSE

"The Best of Enemies" (Today Thru Tues.) is a comedy satire.
British captain David Niven and flyer Michael Wilding are captured in Abyssinia by ragged troops commanded by Italian captain Alberto Sordi. Although sparks fly between Niven and Sordi, the two British officers are allowed to escape in an effort to conserve food.

They return to the English base with information concerning a proposed Italian offensive. Niven is ordered to take a heavily armored unit and capture a nearby Italian fort where Sordi's men are hiding. There follows is a series of military misadventures, many highly comic, in which Sordi and Niven are thrown together. Comment: the futurity of war, told with a laugh.

Totally untrained as spies, they become involved in a series of comical mishaps. They are aided by fiery Elsa Martinielli who at first resists having to feed two extra mouths when there is a scarcity of food. She becomes more cordial when she sees in one of the Americans (either will do) a possible husband for her pregnant sister, played by voluptuous Gabriella Pallotta. A comedy of errors, most of them involving carrier pigeons, follows. Comment: the funny side of wartime spying.

"Facts" For Fifth Graders.

To the Editor of Town Topics: Ideas often come via the chance remark. Attitudes can be stimulated by the casual statement. So it is with a certain sadness that one reads the following from a fifth grade history text currently in use in the Princeton public schools:

"But why is the world so interested in space travel? One important reason is that some control of space may be needed in a future war. It is quite likely that space will be used for war purposes, in which case people must be prepared to use it to defend themselves."

Ah, grim future so blandly portrayed and so innocently accepted!

Such remarks make subtle preparation for the continued acceptance of war as a useful human activity. Cannot our youth identify for the young the great problem facing our civilization — how to abolish war — so that we adults have not yet made this identification?

FRED H. TENNEY

Rainy Day Note.

To the Editor of Town Topics: The other day I had the misfortune to break one of the ribs in my umbrella and although I tried various places along Nassau Street, and asked if there was some shop at the Shopping Center where umbrellas are repaired, I met with no luck. No one seemed connected with anyone in New York who could do the job and I was told I had better go there and get it done. This seems rather expensive and while there are many people in Princeton who might do just that, there are also a number who cannot afford a trip just for this and I am in the group. When I was looking for someone who might help, I met three others seeking the same service. Perhaps you would care to be of assistance?

MULFORD COLEBROOK
120 Alexander Street
Editor's Note: Princeton apparently has no FIRM Shop. Calls by TOWN TOPICS to three establishments which it thought might have accepted such work brought negative replies. What have others with fractured umbrellas done?

Asks Citizens To Comment.

To the Editor of Town Topics: I notice that the Zoning Board of Adjustment has approved the application of Palmer Square, Incorporated, to put a new retail and office building on the corner of Palmer Square and Nassau Street and to provide parking spaces for about 170 additional automobiles in the Palmer Square area.

The deed is done and I suppose we will get used to seeing another acre of automobiles and to being without the grass now on the corner.

Perhaps it would be better if no one talked about it now. I have not been in Princeton long enough to have participated in the series of bruising conflicts, meetings and decisions that have occurred in past years on matters relating to change in the center of our Borough. Furthermore, I recognize that the relatively young are not always welcomed in family quarrels.

Nevertheless, I would hope that Princeton might avoid the most heart-breaking aspects of rapid change and displacement by trying to submerge all anxieties and bitterness in a new spirit of mutual concern for how we are all going to live together peaceably and profitably.

Princetonians are united by a common love of their town but on occasion they bled each other terribly.

Would it be possible for your newspaper to ask representative Princetonians to write each week a short article on what they hope the Princeton of tomorrow would be like and how we might it about? Perhaps The Future of Princeton Committee of the Borough Council might seek in ways to provide a forum for those who are concerned about what changes seem to be in the offing and how we might ensure that the future is shaped in Princeton's greatest benefit.

Hawks At GOP "Hurricane."

To the Editor of Town Topics: That was quite a windy piece the Township Republican candidates put out on consolidation last week — what with hurricanes at one end and things flaming at the other end! I do wish they would invite me to one of those neighborhood meetings where — at least so the papers say — they go into these rhetorical oratory (each week).

But despite all their exuberant language, they are seriously uninformed about the consolidation question. They tell us that when the two mayors sit down to talk over mutual problems, this equals dramatic (Republican) progress on the consolidation front. Then they immediately take the credit for having suggested that the mayors take this bold step.

To anyone who knows a little Township political history — and can read the signals — it's obvious the stage is being set for something. And these Republican "somethings" have a way of occurring at just the right interval before election.

I don't blame these gentlemen for worrying about how the Republicans look on the consolidation question. I don't blame them for snarling or making the best out of a fundamentally poor position. But I wish they understood the core issue of consolidation better than they apparently do.

They are publicly committed to the idea of a study of "municipal operations" — an idea that was devised by the Borough Mayor and Council as an alternative to a fact-finding study of consolidation. Township Committee voiced its displeasure with the lameness of this Borough response and on this one, the Committee was absolutely correct.

Looking at a whole series of "municipal operations" is just about as far away from consolidation as one can get, because it serves merely to mend a few of the holes in our crazy patchwork quilt of Borough-Township relations. This approach keeps us from considering consolidation because it deliberately avoids the big issue of how the Princeton community will organize itself to deal with its mounting and increasingly serious problems.

The Republican candidates seem not to have a glimmer of this important distinction. Nor have they grasped the fact that those of us who have been urging action on this front are insisting only that there be a serious, impartial fact-finding

FESTIVAL PLANS LISTED

Show Opens Nov. 3. Joseph Donjan will be among the artists whose works will be seen at Princeton's Festival of the Arts, scheduled to be held next month. The program, which will begin on November 3 and last through the 6th, will be held for the benefit of the May Margaret Fine Endowment Fund.

More than 200 Princeton residents have volunteered to help staff the program. The Festival will be open 10-5 on Saturday, noon-5 Sunday and 5-10 the concluding two days. Mrs. James C. Sykes, chairman of staffing, has appointed officers of the day to watch the exhibits. They are Mrs. Williams Combs, Mrs. Henry Patton, Mrs. John Sheehan, Mrs. Francis Austin, Mrs. Douglas MacNeil, Mrs. Nathaniel Burt, Mrs. Arthur Moran, Mrs. Simon Hutter, Mrs. William D.O. Lipponceli, Mrs. Edward Conlin, Mrs. Douglas Gordon, Mrs. Frederick Lawrence, Mrs. William H. Walker, II, Mrs. Marston Morse, Mrs. Maurice Healy and Mrs. P. H. Holt.

Varying from the past two years, the show will be staged in three parts. Included will be a loan show consisting of works borrowed from Princeton residents, a historical display and an exhibition of contemporary art.

Indian copper, African carvings, Peruvian ceramics and Scandinavian woven cloth will be among the collections displayed in the latter section. Mexico, Switzerland and Alaska will be among the other locales represented.

Donjan's works, which are presently displayed in other countries, have been described as a combination of painting and wood-cutting. He has been awarded the Kossuth Prize by his homeland, Hungary, and he is the only non-

FROM THE HANDS OF ROMAN SOLDIERS: These nails were buried 1900 years ago by the retreating Roman legion stationed near Perth, Scotland. Similar to the nails used at the Crucifixion, they will be given by Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Richards to Princeton churches and schools. (Story, this page.)

HISTORIC NAILS GIVEN
To Churches and Schools
First Century iron nails, buried about 50 years after the death of Christ, have been sent to Mr. and Mrs. Alan Richards of 617 Princeton-Kingston Road.

They will be given to Princeton churches and schools and a set was presented on Monday to the Firestone Library.
According to Mr. Richards, the nails are a part of a hoard found in 1961 by an Oxford University archaeologist, Dr. I. A. Richmond, who had been digging at the site of a demolished Roman fortress at Inchuthill, near Perth, Scotland. Nails exactly like these, the archaeologist reports, must have been used at the crucifixion of Christ.

The fort was built in 83 A.D. as the advance headquarters of Agricola. It contained barracks for 5,500 men, administration offices, a drill hall, officer housing, hospital and a great workshop. The site, occupied for only six years, was abandoned when trouble developed along the Danube. The legion garrisoned there was pulled out and sent back between the years 87 and 90 A.D.

The departing legion systematically burned all buildings, destroyed pottery into pieces no bigger than the top joint of a man's thumb, and even filled the drains and sewers with gravel.

Transportation Problem
But they left behind their valuable stock of nails in the workshop shop, perhaps running into transport difficulties. As the nails could be melted down and hammered out into weapons by the Caesarians, the Romans dug a pit, poured the nails into it 12 feet deep, packed six feet of earth on top and then demolished the building over the place to remove all traces.

After nearly 1,800 years the archaeologist discovered it when he trenched across the site and noticed a difference in the color and texture of the soil. Digging down, he came to the rusted remains of iron wheel tires, then a crusted mass of metal where countless nails formed a solid sheet. Below it was a further mass of nails, almost unrust-

Ancient iron had never been discovered before in such quantity. There were, in fact, three-quarters of a million nails, ranging in size from two inches to 16 inches. They weighed nearly seven tons. About 6,000 were good specimens.

The nails were sorted and granted by the Calville Steel Company. The British Iron & Steel Institute and British Archaeologists. An assortment came to Mr. Richards in memory of his father, a former director of Calville.

Who Should Have Them?
Mr. Richmond decided that the nails should go to places and people where the dignity of their history would be properly maintained, to be helpful in promotion of the classical story of the Roman Empire—and the most interesting portion of the story which associated them with the period of the Crucifixion. In keeping with this idea, Mr. and Mrs. Richards will give one nail each to St. Paul's Roman Catholic Church, Trinity Episcopal Church, the Methodist Church, Wilkespoa Presbyterian Church, First Presbyterian Church, Lutheran Church of the Messiah and the University Chapel.

Also, the classics department at Princeton High School, Miss Fiae's School, Princeton Theological Seminary and to Dr. Homer Thompson, archaeologist at the Institute for Advanced Study.

The Richards received one set for their own library—and that exhausts the supply.

SIX ARE FINED
In Borough Court, Mrs. Elizabeth Flumery, 24, 11 Patton Avenue, and Bruce A. Olson, 17, 23 Broadripple Drive, were each fined $15 for late inspection violations Monday by Borough Magistrate Theodore Tams, Jr. Both pleaded guilty.

Carl W. Vernon, 23, 214-D Halsey Street, was fined $15 for careless driving. Diarmuid McGuire, 18, 63 Campbell St., Princeton University, was fined $15 for begging. A companion, Stephen J. Schuller, 20, same address, was fined $10 for standing in the roadway. Mrs. Rosina Palumbo, 54, 18 Clearview Avenue, was fined $10 "stop" sign violation. She pleaded not guilty.

In criminal court, Frank W. Steeger, 44, of New Shrewsbury, New Jersey, pleaded guilty to directing offensive and indecent language at Mrs. Theresa Thomas, the violations clerk. He was fined $50.

PROBLEMS CONSOLIDATION WILL SOLVE BEST FOR YOUR Education

(Many members of both Borough and Township Boards of Education take the justifiable position that the school systems should not consolidate before the municipalities do. Furthermore, governing bodies do not and should not have control over Boards of Education. Therefore, we are only pointing out here the advantages to the school systems of municipal consolidation, which we advocate.)

Do You Realize that...

- Two Boards of Education in one community must do everything twice . . . and some things must be done three times? For instance, each board makes its decision about curriculum separately, but since students are headed for the same High School, those decisions must be jointly reviewed.
- Although the Township has more students than the Borough in the High School, it has no control over the High School physical plant, its curriculum, or its management? As a result, the Township is seriously considering building its own High School. (Similarly, the Borough, with limited space, must rely on the Township for expansion of recreational facilities, over which it may have no control.)
- In many cases students living across the road from a school are not allowed to cross the artificial municipal boundary line to go there?
- By planning to build next to the Westminster Choir College the Borough Board of Education is prepared to go it alone? And by doing it will create traffic problems in the Township which its Master Plan never contemplated.

What Consolidation Will Do For Our Schools

Municipal consolidation will provide the framework within which one Board of Education can handle with complete authority all problems of public education in Princeton. We candidates are pledged to provide that one Board of Education the power and the flexibility to solve the educational problems of one community . . . and efficiently, have decisions administered without duplication of effort, and achieve high standards of excellence.

Consolidation can be achieved without loss of jobs or status by people in Borough and Township educational systems, police forces, fire department or in local government employment. Consolidation can be accomplished without creating unfair tax burdens, based on the law (Title 40, Chapter 43, Section 66) permitting differential rates, based upon existing delts.

Why Plan to Vote Republican Democratic

By Kevin Kennedy

By John R. Yost Jr.

John Green and Carl Schafer are the two best qualified men to serve on Township Committee.

John Green, a long-time Princeton resident, will be the only lawyer on the Township Committee, a valuable asset indeed considering the ever-growing size and complexity of our municipal operation, and its increasing importance in Mercer County and the State. John has also had extensive business experience, and will bring to the Committee a businessman's keen sense of economy and efficiency. John's background includes furthermore continuous and conscientious service on the Township Board of Assessors, acquainting him intimately with the Board's problems and responsibilities. Lastly, John has always brought a perceptive interest and astute approach to any and all matters concerning Princeton Township, as evidenced by his regular attendance of its meetings of the Township Committee, the Township Planning Board and the Township Zoning Board of Adjustment. His familiarity with the purposes, areas of jurisdiction and responsibilities of these Boards could not be any more complete.

Carl Schafer has been a life-long resident of Princeton, and he has seen it grow from a town of less than 10,000 people in 1930 to over 21,000 residents today. Carl is a very successful local businessman, and he will bring business skills to the operation of the Township.

As a businessman, he is naturally in constant contact with dozens of Princetonians every single day. Thus, Carl will combine his sure ability to feel the pulse of the Township with a continuing assessment of the Township's problems and operations as tried and tested through his daily contacts with so many of his fellow citizens. Finally, Carl has further excellent qualifications for Township Committee through his various community services, such as the Princeton United Community Fund, the Hillcrest Civic Association and as an Elder of the Second Presbyterian Church.

From the above, it is readily seen that both of these men have proven ever and over again their dedication and interest in the community and that they are bringing outstanding and valuable qualifications to their service on the Township Committee. Their platform, published as early as May of this year, is expressive of their approach to and assessment of Township operations and problems, and includes recommendations for progress and action as follows:

1. Prompt execution of Township sewer program.
2. Develop Community Gardens for recreation as soon as feasible.
3. Redouble efforts to have the State construct Route 206.
4. Interstate 92: Rocky Hill to Hightstown By-Pass.
5. Complete an early study of areas of joint operation between Borough and Township, leading to conclusive action on merger when all the facts are known.
6. Carry out recommendations of Open Space Committee.
7. Acquisition of joint library site and construction of new library as soon as practicable, long endorsed and sponsored by Township Republicans.
8. Maintain and strictly enforce Township Zoning Ordinances.
9. Carry forward Township's Master Plan.

These two men have widely divergent backgrounds and can be expected to differ with each other and their fellow committeemen on particular

Last spring I had occasion to leave the country for an extended period of time. When I left, Township Committee was discussing dogs. When I returned some two months later, they were discussing dogs. Apparently both they and the public were aroused by the subject.

Somewhat this seems allegorical to me. Where else in the world is it so easy to discuss Red China, nuclear testing, or refugees in Hong Kong, and so difficult to (publicly) discuss a subject like consolidation. We Princetonians consider ourselves sophisticated, erudite and concerned; yet we permit our egos and ancient attitudes so to dominate our good sense that two school systems largely go their own way, two planning boards don't know what each other is doing, and we reach the ridiculous situation where one school board makes plans outside their "community" without even consulting the affected parties.

This is perhaps a long way of getting to the point, which is that penultimately the responsibility for such confusion must rest with the governing political bodies. Their task is not an enviable one, for it surely would be difficult at best to stir our learned constituency to local action—political action—as opposed to new dog laws. But stir them (we) somebody must, if we are to preserve those qualities of Princeton which everyone wants to preserve, and do it with excellence instead of mediocrity.

Ultimately, of course, it is for the citizens to decide and to bear the responsibility. That is why I believe that now is the proper time for some serious inspection as to whether we should continue to return to office year after year a group of men who, whatever their good qualities, have certainly failed to perform the primary task of providing informed political leadership on issues crucial to the development of Princeton. There have been precious few times when a Township Committeeman made a public gesture, outside Committee meeting, to arouse, inform, or lead the public. I'm not implying that the task would be easy, or that the Township can do it alone, but I can't see how the issues that are of real importance to both municipalities can be resolved other than to publicly expose the ways, the means, the facts, and the superstitions.

The Republicans have had every opportunity to do something about this situation. They have controlled and dominated the various governmental committees for 150 years. Actually, that is an understatement. Only twice in the history of the Township has a Democrat been elected to Township Committee, and over the years appointments to various boards have routinely gone to Republicans.

This has always seemed strange to me, particularly when one considers, for example, a planning board. One would think that a mixture of political viewpoints here would be not only beneficial but actually welcome. But such is apparently not the case.

Summing up then, I am less than satisfied with the progress being made on the substantial issues which confront our community. I hold the Republicans completely responsible for this lack of progress, and therefore have no trouble deciding the vote for Democrats John Hille and Jim Foley for Township Committee. This would be true if they were just ordinary candidates, which of course they are not.

They have both been keen students of the local scene, and have demonstrated in their

SILENT SPRING?

Not in Princeton. Rachel Carson's best-selling alarm bell, "Silent Spring," has made even non-bird-watchers in Princeton (and there are a few) anxious about the return of the 1963 robin. It is possible that excessive use of insect sprays will indeed decimate the bird population and make Princeton's springs "silent" and without the songs of birds.

As any Princeton nature-lover knows, there is really only one "bird man" in town and he is Charles Rogers, Princeton class of 1906, curator of the Princeton Museum of Zoology.

"There hasn't been so much damage in Princeton," Mr. Rogers says. "General, broadcast, hit-or-miss spraying is certainly devastating, but we haven't had trouble here since our spring a few years ago. I've forgotten the date—when people were bringing me dead birds one night after another. The trouble that year was that sprayers had used a heavy, coarse opening for their sprayers and the DOT simply streamed down the tree-trunks and formed puddles which the birds drank and then they died."

Since that year, however, Mr. Rogers has not found dead birds in great number, and he points out that spraying is necessary for such crops as apples, tobacco and potatoes.

A sharp-eyed, sharp-witted gentleman who presides over an aerie on the third floor of Guyot Hall, Mr. Rogers has been in his curator post since 1920, having arrived there by the unorthodox route of modern languages. That was his specialty in Princeton as an undergraduate. He took one course in biology, the elementary one offered in his day, and that is all he ever had.

CHARLES ROGERS, BIRD MAN: Like the birds he knows so well, Mr. Rogers has extended his range beyond the confines of Princeton, which has been his home, off and on, for nearly 60 years. He crossed Africa from Mombasa to the mouth of the Congo in 1932, before traveling in Africa had acquired status, and he went on a walking tour of the Himalayas that same year. "I've been on all the continents except Antarctica," he says. Mr. Rogers comments on the bird population of Princeton, its future, and its past, in the story on this page. (Staff Photo)

"Don't call me 'Doctor' because I ain't no 'Doctor,'" he has often said to awed acquaintances who are certain that a PhD must lie behind the dignity and the erudition.

Getting back to silent springs, Mr. Rogers as a naturalist, knows the value of insects and he suggests, with Miss Carson, that the best way to fight insects may be to use insect enemies, either another species that feeds on the undesirable one, or a disease that will wipe out an unwanted species like the Japanese beetle.

Over the years in Princeton—and Mr. Rogers was a freshman when Lake Carnegie was "built"—the bird man has seen many ornithological changes here, and not all of them due to insects.

Ducks Ahead. The backwaters of Princeton streams and waterways have provided homes for the wood-duck, none on the increase here since spring hunting was stopped, Mr. Rogers says. "We rarely used to see gulls in the open fields," he recalls, "now there are lots of ring-bills and you'll see maybe 100-200 at a time."

The house finch, a completely western bird, is now exploring Princeton and has been here for three or four winters, apparently arriving in the east through the medium of a pet store. "Eventually," it will be common here," Mr. Rogers predicts. "Like most birds, it is increasing its range."

The mockingbird is another one that is venturing into open space. Seen occasionally in Princeton gardens in the summer, it has now become a constant summer resident here, and is spreading northward all along the line.

Perhaps the most dramatic new Princeton resident—or, at least, visitor—is the cattle egret, a heron native to the Iberian peninsula, Africa and tropical Asia. Starting on its world wide tour over half a century ago, probably by means of a hitchhiking boat ride across the south Atlantic, the cattle egret was observed this July, in full adult plumage, surveying the possibilities at Walker-Gordon.

"It will probably come again," Mr. Rogers believes and may even nest here and get to be quite common as a summer visitor. And starlings! Starlings have come from nothing since 1905.

But there have been losses. "Meadow and field birds have decreased," Mr. Rogers points out, "because meadows and fields have decreased, meadow larks, bob-winks, Henslow sparrows, upland plovers—used to be common around Princeton."

Owls are thinning out, partly because they have been hunted, although great horned owls are still about.

"Someone brought me a barn owl he had shot, and I said 'You ought to be ashamed of yourself for shooting it.' Barn owls are great mouse-eaters, you know. People shoot birds of prey too much; the hawk has struck it badly from hunters who ought to know better."

Another fairly common Princeton bird used to be the Acadian fly-catcher, a resident of the woods along river-bottoms. Mr. Rogers found a nest

CAN A GIRL BE THE POPPER in popping the question? No, says Miss Ruth Ann Borosko (left) and Miss Shirley Merrill, who agree it is still nice to hear—even though you know it's coming. The men aren't wholly convinced, however.

Question of the Week

Question: In your opinion, is there anything worse than the girl doing the proposing?

Where asked: Around town.

Miss Ruth Ann Borosko, Princeton Junction, bookkeeper, D. Van Nostrand Co.: Yes, I think it takes all the fun out of it. It is much better when you're surprised—even though you know it's coming.

Miss Shirley Merrill, Princeton Junction, secretary, D. Van Nostrand Co.: Sure, you would be able to hear what they're saying and how they work up to it. Even if he is shy, I'd prefer him to struggle through it, rather than have me do it.

Martin Robm, Morrisville, Pa., owner of Nassau Street Tree: Not at all. If it is a 50-50 deal, which they say it is, why shouldn't she have a chance? She has every right to protect her interests; if she loves a man whom she likes and would want to marry, why shouldn't she be allowed to do the proposing? Today's double standard seems to be the accepted thing. It used to be a man's single standard, but that's no longer true. Today women vote, drink, drive, wear pants—they lead the men pretty much around by the nose.

Miss Cathie Sittig, 150 Mountain Avenue, student Miss Fine's School: Yes, there is. I think if a girl does the proposing, she is going to feel guilty the rest of her life. She's been very forward; she'll wonder the rest of her life if he ever would have proposed, if he hadn't asked him. Even though they may be very much in love, she should wait. If he loves her enough, he'll ask. Patience is a virtue.

Miss Hattie Busselle, 87 Lovewell Lane, social worker. I think it depends entirely on the circumstances. If a man is too reserved or unassuming to think a woman would be interested enough in him to marry him, then I feel it is perfectly all right for a woman to suggest marriage.

Robert Chandross, 80 Alexander Street, graduate student, economics: I don't see anything wrong with it. Women are supposedly becoming our equals in society. If they want an equal position with males, and since this is such a vital matter of life, and if it becomes necessary in a complex particular situation, then I think she should do the proposing.

Mrs. Doris Briddon, Highway 27, bookkeeper, First National Bank: No, I don't. Sometimes a girl is so bashful and shy they just give you the ring and say, 'Here!' and they don't say anything else. They expect the girl to take it from them.

Leon McCoy, Morrisville, Pa., meatcutter for Princeton Acme: Yes, I feel the man should take the initiative. If a man doesn't take the initiative in proposing, surely the girl will take the initiative in everything else after they're married.

Samuel Chiselm, Calhoun

Street, Trenton, garage-man for Turney Motors: Actually, I don't think so. If you've been keeping a couple for a long time, I don't see where it matters who does the proposing. But if two people have known each other only for a short while, I think the man should do the proposing.

Mrs. Sidney Combs, Route 1, Princeton, housewife: Yes, I think in proposing it is the proper role for the man to do the asking. I guess I'm just old-fashioned, but I prefer the old-fashioned way.

Douglas Esson, Pine Hall, University senior: I think it depends on the situation. Had the two people been going together for a long time and the girl obviously wanted to get married but the boy was holding her back because he thought the girl wasn't ready to get married or for some other reason, then I feel it would be permissible for a girl to mention marriage—in obvious situations such as this. But for a girl just to come right out and propose would, I feel, be quite presumptuous on her part. In general I disapprove of women doing any of the proposing.

Mrs. Judy Nelson, 222-B Marshall Street, registered nurse: No, not at all. I don't think she should come right out and ask, but a lot depends on the boy. Lots of times, people you know very well, you know what they are thinking but they just don't say it. There's a lot more to it than just asking the question.

Miss Diane Beckman, Hargensen, bookkeeper, First National Bank: No, I don't. Sometimes they go together so long that a girl should ask just to keep it from going on and on and on. A girl should be able to ask and find out if he ever intends to ask her. . . . There is no reason why she should allow herself to be string along forever by some man.

Miss Patricia Morris, Dover Del., Rider College freshman: Yes, because the man is supposed to be aggressive. He's the one that is supposed to take the initiative in proposing. If he's really in love he won't be too shy to ask a girl. By the time he's ready to ask her, he should know her well enough not to be afraid.

Miss PERRY Baisch, Rochester, N.Y., Rider College freshman: Yes, because he is going to be the head of the family and it is not just the woman's position to do it. He's got to take all the major steps first, including marriage.

YWCA PLANS FESTIVAL
On International Theme. November 16, 17 and 18 are the dates set for the YWCA's International Festival, whose chairmen are Mrs. Paul T. Boytell, Jr. and Mrs. Leonard F. Newton. Volunteers are needed for the Festival, and those wishing to help should call Mrs. Howard Waxwood, Y executive director, at WA 4-4825.

Many booths, representing different countries, or areas throughout the world, will be available, offering gifts and proceeds will benefit the Y World Fellowship Fund.

The hours on Friday, November 16, will be from 8 to 10 p.m., with the official opening ceremony scheduled for Saturday morning. There will be a tea on Sunday.

Chairmen of the various committees are: Mrs. John Hughes, booths; Mrs. Eugene Hinkel and Mrs. John Reid, exhibits; Mrs. Kenneth D. McLaren, sponsors; Mrs. C. E. Lambert and Mrs. Harold S. Willis, Sunday Tea.

Also, Mrs. John Sutherland, children's program; Mrs. M. A. Bedde, Mrs. Richard Huber and Mrs. Heinz Heinemann, general theme and publicity.

CONVICTION REVERSED
For Mrs. Elaine Kendall, Mercer County Judge Ralph Fusco has reversed the decision of Township Magistrate James S. Hill concerning the conviction of Mrs. Elaine Kendall, 63 Heather Lane.

Mrs. Kendall was issued a summons July 20 for failing to yield right of way. She was entering Harrison Street from Valley Road, when her car was hit broadside by an automobile driven by Miss Beverly Beck, 58 Scott Avenue, Princeton Junction. The summons for failing to observe the stop sign was issued by Patrolman Anthony N. Pinelli of Princeton Township.

Leon Levy, attorney for Mrs. Kendall, established that there was no witness to her failure to stop before proceeding into Harrison Street. Magistrate Hill had amended the complaint to failure to yield right of way at an intersection.

In a lengthy comment, Judge Fusco observed, "It's always disturbing to a court when police officers come to an accident and, after seeing nothing, issue summonses." He added, "Once a car in a stop street has stopped and moved out with safety, the traffic through the street must stop."

Miss Beck's testimony revealed that she was traveling at exactly 25 miles an hour because there was a policeman behind her, who turned off a block before Valley. Judge Fusco was so intent on watching the cop behind her that she wasn't watching the road. All she saw was that she hit another car."

ASK THE CANDIDATES

At Meeting Tuesday, Candidates for Congress and Freeholder will speak Tuesday at 8:15 at the Community Park School under the auspices of the League of Women Voters. Each will discuss a topic submitted by the League, and will then be questioned from the floor. Mrs. Martin Schwartz, child will be the moderator. The Congressional candidates, Frank Thompson, Jr. (Democrat) and Ephraim Tomlinson (Republican) will be asked to give their views on United States foreign policy relating to regional alliances and the United Nations.

The question is phrased: "Present eminent spokesmen have suggested that the United States place more emphasis on regional alliances, both economic and military. However, they have not excluded continuing support of the United Nations. How can we determine when to channel our conduct of foreign affairs through our regional alliances and when to channel them through the United Nations?"

County Problems. The two Democratic incumbents, Rich and J. Coffee and Arthur R. Sykes, and the Republican candidates, Mrs. Regina H. Meredith and Anton J. Holmboe, will be asked to discuss the two most pressing problems in Mercer County and to give their suggestions for solving them.

Timekeeper for the meeting will be Mrs. William F. Haynes. Also Mrs. Glen F. Trevis. Mrs. B. C. Curtiss, Jr. and Mrs. Tom K. Scott, acting as hostesses. Mrs. Sidney Lebowitz is chairman of the planning committee, and Mrs. Willard Machie is director of voter service.

Other Meetings Set. Candidates for Princeton offices will appear Monday, October 29, at Community Park School at 8:15, and Lawrence Township voters will question their candidates next Thursday at the same time at Lawrence Junior High School.

"Issues in New Jersey Elections" will be the subject of the League's second radio program in the series "Viewpoint" on Sunday at 4:30 over WPTM. Participants will be Mrs. Raymond Male, Miss Elizabeth Wright of Trenton and Mrs. Melvin Gottlieb, Mrs. Cary Peckles will be the moderator. Mrs. Male, wife of the former mayor of the Borough, will take the Democratic side, with Miss Wherry, secretary to Senator Clifford Case and former Senator Alexander Smith, speaking as a Republican. Mrs. Gottlieb is director of regional planning for the League.

SENIOR PROBLEMS TOPIC

At PHS Parents' Meeting. Parents of seniors at Princeton High School are invited to meet with teachers and administrators Wednesday, October 24, at 8, for a discussion of current and post-graduate problems.

The question-and-answer session will be devoted to study habits (number of hours to be allocated to specific and general assignments, projects, etc.), the Guidance Department, standards of behavior and forms of discipline, social events, and developments in course of study (Advanced Placement, mathematics, English, etc.).

Aspects of the post-graduate situation to be discussed are college, armed services, job opportunities, and financing of education beyond high school. The meeting is sponsored by the High School PTA. Refreshments will be served.

MRS. CABIN CHAIRMAN

OF PTA Book Fair. Mrs. Harvey D. Cabin is in charge of the Valley Road-Community Park PTA Book Fair, which will be held the week of November 12. It will be open from 8:15 to 4 Tuesday through Friday of that week in the Community Park Library.

Details on a special program, scheduled for Wednesday, November 13, at Community Park, will be announced at a later date.

Books will be supplied by Male's Book Shop, and will also be available for purchase at the shop. The proceeds from sales at both places will go to the Princeton High School Scholarship Fund.

GRAPHIC ARTS IN SHOW

At Gallery 100. "Contemporary American Prints" is the title of Gallery 100's current exhibition which will run until November 10 at 100 Nassau Street. Works by Leonard Baskin, Ben Shahn, Aubrey Benton, Jacob Landau and Denton Sprunt are included.

The techniques range from woodcuts to lithographs, and the styles run from realistic to extreme abstraction. Following the exhibition, the Gallery will have available a wide selection of prints for those who wish to buy or just browse.

In commenting on the renaissance in print-making in this country, Gallery 100 points out that original art may be obtained at moderate prices through the purchase of prints. A print is an original work, it adds, and is not to be mistaken for a reproduction.

A print artist has made and signed the print, he then decides how many will be made and a limited edition (sometimes 100), and following the printing, the plates may be destroyed.

PLANS TO BE MADE By Junior Faculty Wives. The first meeting of the year for the Junior Faculty Wives will be held Monday at 8:45 in the Faculty Lounge of Princeton Library. Plans for the year will be announced, board members introduced, and study groups discussed.

Preceding the meeting, new members will be invited for office. Those who have not received an invitation should call Mrs. A. Richard Turner, WA 4-5748.

1000 WORDS A MINUTE!

Yes it's easy to read this fast—and faster, when you use the ACCELERATED READING technique. This new and remarkable method of reading teaches you to read directly down the page instead of across the lines. And, you can read almost any kind of material this way—novels, textbooks, history, business correspondence, magazine articles and newspapers. Most graduates of the ACCELERATED READING course read faster than 1000 words a minute. MANY read more than 2500 words a minute.

YOU can learn to read from 2 to 6 times as fast as you do now—with no loss in comprehension or enjoyment. Let ACCELERATED READING enable you to read much more in the time you have available or to have more time available by finishing your reading quickly and effectively.

A course in ACCELERATED READING will be taught in Princeton this fall. Enrollments are now being accepted for the class beginning November 1. The course will be 10 weeks long with one 2½ hour class session each week. The course is open to townspeople, faculty and students.

PRINCETON'S OPEN CESSPOOL

- Princeton's main trunk sewer opens into Lake Carnegie at four (4) separate points and a sixth opening into the Stony Brook area. These so-called "by-passes" are 24 inch open pipes connected directly to the main sewer; they spill millions of gallons of raw sewage into the Lake whenever the trunk fills to capacity.
- After the sewer scandals of last winter and spring the Sewer Operating Committee (Borough—University—Township) announced in April that it would increase the pumping capacity from 6 million gallons per day to 10 mgd.
- But NOTHING HAS YET BEEN DONE.
- At the same time, in the Riverside area, the S.O.C. casually opened a fifth by-pass into Lake Carnegie. In early Summer, the Township Committee was pushing the construction of the unwanted and unnecessary Great Road Sewer—at an estimated cost of $360,000.00!
- In late Summer, the Township Committee reluctantly authorized the survey of the needed and necessary sewer in Hillside Avenue, an area where the drinking-water wells have been contaminated by septic tanks.

SOME QUESTIONS:

- Why has the Township Committee not forced the Sewer Operating Committee to act?
- Will the Hillside Avenue sewer be pushed to a speedy completion?
- Why has the Township Committee not pressed the repair and modernization of the present system and at the same time has pressed for construction of the unnecessary Great Road Sewer?

SUMMER QUARTER ENDS

In Business Calendar. While business analysts over the country were scanning their third quarter figures and finding them "mixed," Princeton found itself in the same general condition, as the figures for the July-August-September quarter came to a final tally.

As they were at the end of the summer quarter in 1961, the bank figures were solidly on the plus side; checking accounts had been down 3.5 percent in the January-February-March quarter.

New car sales, that lodestone of the economy, were down 24 percent from the spring quarter, as they had been down 27 percent in the spring quarter of the previous year. People just don't buy cars heavily in the summer.

Compared to last year, sales are down 6 percent, and last year's sales were down 6 percent compared to 1960. Perhaps the automobile dealers can take some heart from the fact that the decline is two percent less than it was in the previous year.

dramatically in the 200 percent increase in new housing starts over the last quarter. What is the meaning of this astounding jump? It means that in the spring quarter, there were very few new housing starts. In the summer quarter, there were two.

The Township was back in business this quarter with an 80 percent increase in new housing starts, having dropped back 32 percent from the winter quarter to the spring quarter.

How Much? In the value of building permits, both Town and Borough reflect, as they so frequently do, the building and maintenance plans of the University. For example, the Township has a whistling increase in value of 270 percent over last year, and 115 percent over the spring quarter.

There are two answers to this. One answer is: boilers. In August, the University installed half a million dollars worth of boilers—$750,000 worth—precise—and helped to boost the Township's building permit figure.

The second answer is: school construction. In September, officials of the new Sacred Heart school took out building permits for their $1,327,000 building project on The Great Road, and lifted the building permit figure to its indicated height.

Welfare percentages, sharply up for the year, and moderately up for the quarter, do not actually reflect an alarming economic picture for the Borough, as the figures might indicate. Summer quarter figures are higher than they used to be because fewer families are paying full-time domestic help during the summer when they are not needed. These people then apply for welfare assistance until their employers take them on again in the fall.

Also, according to Mrs. John H. Ahrens, Borough welfare officer, the department is getting more chronic cases than before. Alcoholics, for example, who may be counted on the rolls month after month while the agency helps them with their problems. There are also carry-over cases who are simply waiting for social security or disability payments to be initiated, and who need welfare assistance to tide them over. And agencies such as Family Service and the welfare office of Princeton Hospital are sending more referrals to the welfare department, Mrs. Ahrens reports.

TIGERS NEED 'COMEBACK'

After Poor Game At Penn. It is a football rarity when a team romps to three touchdowns in less than 12 minutes of the first quarter and then spends virtually the entire second half on the defensive while its followers anxiously wait for the clock to run out.

That's what happened last week at Philadelphia, where Princeton all but backed in to a 21-8 victory over Penn. Memories of the mistake-laden, punchless final 48 minutes of the game may drive the Tigers to a better performance when they take on Colgate Saturday at 2 in Palmer Stadium.

A look at the last eight games in this series, played consecutively since 1934, when Colgate agreed to end its spring practice in return for a place on the Princeton schedule, shows clearly that the Tigers must score at least three times to win.

On each of the four occasions that Orange and Black teams have failed to gain the upper hand (three defeats and a 6-6 tie), they managed no more than a lone touchdown. Last fall, they were blanked, 15 to 0.

Not only have Princeton eleven in the past decade been somewhat porous on defense, but in the case of Colgate, a non-league foe, no intensive work is done in preparation for the visitors' particular style of attack. The theory is to polish the offense and plan to beat them in a high-scoring game.

Some Success Achieved. At least half the time, this policy has paid off—Princeton won in 1956, 28-20, from 1958-60 prevailed in give-and-take battles by 40-13, 42-7 and 36-26. A year ago, however, the Tigers spent two mid-October weeks searching for their offense as they followed a slim 6-3 triumph over Penn with the 15-0 shutout at Colgate's hands. Both game were played on muddy fields.

Colgate has started slowly this fall with a 1-2 record. Coach Hal Lahar's return after departure four years ago for the University of Houston was marked by a surprising 6-2 loss to a weak Brown eleven.

After bouncing back to upend Cornell, 23-12, the Red Raiders last week were beaten by Rutgers, 27-15, as the Scarlet attack netted 406 yards. Graduation hit hard at the middle of Colgate's squad, and depth is lacking at the guard and linebacker slots.

On hand to bedevil Princeton again is a slick quarter-back, captain Dan Keating, taking on handoffs and rollouts and accurate passing engineered last year's victory. A well-balanced Colgate team went on to achieve major success in defeating each member of the Big Three on successive Saturdays.

Jim Heilman and Jim Deegan are backfield veterans who will see most of the action with Keating. Neither tops 180 on the scales, but their running ability blends with Keating's quarterbacking in a manner that will keep Princeton busy on defense.

It is up front where Colgate figures to be outmanned Saturday. Short on experience in some areas and in depth generally compared to the Tigers, the visitors do not rate as the likely winner—if Princeton plays somewhere near its potential, shelving the lackluster brand of football it displayed for the last three periods against Pennsylvania.

LETDOWN WASN'T COSTLY
But Tigers Really Coasted. It is unlikely that any Princeton football team has ever been so thoroughly outplayed for three quarters—as the Tigers were Saturday at Penn.—and won by two touchdowns. In sharply reversing the trend of the contest, a Quaker eleven that still will surprise if it wins half its games this year.

Quicker the Tigers in first downs, 15 to 11, after having failed to make one against Dartmouth.

Ran and passed with considerable ease against the best 11 players Princeton could field when the second half opened, rolling 77 yards in 16 plays for a touchdown.

Dominated action during almost all of the final two periods and, needing only 14 points to score an astounding upset, controlled the initiative almost until the clock ran out.

What Happened? In all probability, it was a combination of a mass case of over-confidence, generated by three rapid-fire touchdowns, and loss of momentum through early wholesale substitutions that removed all of the Tigers' teeth. You have to go back to the unbeaten teams of 1950 and '51 to find a parallel for the 21-point scoring spree that Princeton posed on the board in less than 12 minutes of action.

The rarified atmosphere was just too heady, and the resultant let-down was as depressing from the Princeton point of view as the opening surge had been electrifying. The only difference was that it lasted 42 minutes—four times as long as the surge that started the game.

A fumble by fullback Bill Merlino on the Penn 42 halted the Tigers' first drive, but three plays later, Bill Howard, the big left end, batted a Penn pass in the air and Merlino grabbed it, reaching the home team's nine before he was tackled. Greg Riley cut nine yards across the weak side and Princeton had its first TD at 4.

The second score came four minutes later. Captain Dan Tarcento climaxing a 35-yard march by scampering the final Lessons Learned: Gradually, the initiative changed hands, a development hastened by insertion into the game early in the second period of players third and even fourth on the Princeton depth chart. The first and second units sat on the bench, and when they returned in the second half, their timing, momentum and cohesion were gone.

Penn scored the first time it got the ball, aided by some inept tackling and pass coverage on the Tigers' part. Efforts to retaliate were twice nullified by penalties. Pete Porietis went over once from 28 yards out but the Tigers were called for clipping; a second jump into the end zone, only two plays later, was cancelled by an offense. At that juncture, the team that once held a 21-point lead after 12 minutes essayed a field goal to bolster its thinning margin, but missed from the five-yard line.

Neither team came within 40 yards of scoring during the final half, but Penn was forever seeking to hit on long passes. Good ballhawking by the Princeton "outfield" helped keep the losers in check—in all, the Tigers picked off five Penn passes for their best interception mark in some years.

The sharp downward trend of the Tigers' fortunes, worrisome because it was never reversed during the final three periods, left Princeton with a number of problems that may well prove troublesome throughout the season. Among them:

• Dave Goudin, who handles the place-kicking assign-

WE Congratulate

DAN TERPACK
 Princeton Wingback

Princeton's second touchdown against Pennsylvania Saturday was a 36-yard reverse by Dan Terpack, but it wasn't until he was within a dozen yards of the goal line that he appeared he would go all the way. The reason was simple: any number of Penn tacklers had a shot at the Tiger wingback, and he had to do a standard job of sorting out his blockers.

The trip down the side-lines was anything but a straight race paralleling the chalk mark. Of the blocks thrown, for which Terpack occasionally paused in visible fashion, two (by John Henrich and Tim Callard) were key, and the Tiger captain eventually legged it into the end zone untouched.

The play was typical of his ability, and indicative of Dick Colman's reason for calling him the best wingback Princeton has had since George Sella—a span of a dozen years which have seen some pretty fair ball carriers at the position. That, actually, is the answer: Terpack is far more than a canny carrier—he is a skillful pass-catcher, he blocks to perfection, is a sure tackler and diagnoses enemy passes in radar-like fashion.

Indicative of his all-around ability is the fact that he won the starting assign when he was sidelined with an ankle fracture sustained against Yale.

Running the wingback reverse, he has averaged six yards in the second game of his sophomore year at a time when three bold-or lettermen were also candidates for the job. Since then, he has started every game save the Dartmouth contest last fall.

better than six yards over three seasons and uses the play to his advantage. Last year, he completed four of seven, two of them for touchdowns, and others for valuable two-point conversions.

Football talent is increasingly a big-man's game—most lines average well over 200 pounds and backs who don't top 180 are considered light. Terpack at 165 and 5 feet, 9 inches, is far and away the smallest player on the Princeton team, and yet he's the captain. There is no better proof of his combined ability as player and team leader.

The Blue and White's 6-4 record, Ewing is 3-1. The consensus is that the host school will be fielding one of its better teams in the last ten years.

Ewing's attack is led by the running of its standard half-back, Bob Terlecki, who has scored in every Ewing game, and by the passing of quarterback Joe Sero. Most recently, the Blue Devils shutout Mount Holly, 28-0. Running from a tight T, Ewing relies on a lot of ball handling, quick openers and laterals to move the ball.

"They'll be good," said PHS coach Dick Wood. "They won't be as heavy as Trenton, but they're lighter and faster and they have good deception. If our defense can continue as it did against Trenton, I hope we can carry on a better offense against Ewing. The weight won't be there against us, which means we should be able to run better."

No Let-Down: Will losing to Trenton on the last play of the game cause a let down among the Little Tigers? "It ment, has yet to kick a field goal in three seasons. His latest effort was well off target from the 13-yard line.

• Pete Porietis, the leading passer last season with a five completion average of 57%, is markedly off form this fall, overshooting many of his targets. He has had particular trouble on the running pass-catchers, a major threat in every wing football when effectively used.

• Both Dan Terpack and Jim Beckenkamp have chronic leg injuries which give increasing evidence of weakening the solid depth that appeared to exist at wingback.

• Timing on the attack remains poor with a third of the season gone. The Tigers had half a dozen calls against them for back in motion, off-side and illegal procedure, the latter usually a lineman pulling out to block before the ball is snapped, and one of the penalties cost a touchdown.

It is probable, of course, that the lesson of attempting to coast on a presumably big lead will have been learned, and that something a good deal closer to 60 minutes of good football will be forthcoming in the future. This was achieved against both Rutgers and Columbia, and there is reason to believe that both these teams are better than Penn. If Princeton plays good, crisp football, it can handle Colgate without undue difficulty. It cannot, however, afford to keep one eye on its upcoming Ivy League game with Cornell.

EWING IS FAST
 But PHS Has the Defense. Princeton High School's football team revealed a rock hard, impenetrable defense against Trenton last week. The question to be answered on Saturday is whether it will be able to contain the speed and deception of the Ewing Blue Devils.

If the Little Tigers are to salvage some glory out of the current season, the time has come for these questions to be answered in the affirmative. Their season is half over now and following a heartbreaking, last play, 3-0 defeat by Trenton, they have yet to win. They will try again for the fifth time on Saturday at 2 on Ewing's field.

It is safe to say that Ewing will prove to be as tough a hurdle as Princeton High's first four opponents. In contrast to doesn't seem so," said Wood. "After they got settled down in the locker room, they indicated they wanted to go out and get Ewing. I don't think we'll let down," Wood added. "I think we'll continue to improve."

Of course, they were bitterly disappointed, though. They had been thinking about the game from the beginning of the season. They even had signs up on the wall in the middle of September. They had been building up for the game all week and gave a good performance. We're improved a little more and we're going to be awfully tough from here on out."

Had the second half of the Trenton game been a duplicate of the first half, it would have been remembered only for its dullness. As it was, it built up in suspense throughout the remaining quarters, culminating in a seat-grIPPING final 45 seconds which seemed to last 45 minutes. It was a 2-1 tie, in which PHS recovered its own punts four times but was unable to capitalize a single time. It was a game in which 145 yards in penalties were called against both teams. And then there was that 27-yard field goal with one second remaining.

The first half was a standoff. It was dominated by the aggressive line play of both teams. The Tornado line averaged over 200 pounds per man, according to Wood. Against it, the Little Tigers lost a total of 12 yards rushing. "We could have run against it if we could have passed a little more," said Wood, "but when they saw we couldn't pass, they brought their corner linebackers up within a yard of the line, giving them a nine-man line. Even their backs were within five yards of the line of scrimmage. We couldn't run against that."

Britton Adds Strength. The Blue and White line was just as effective. The return of 204-lb. Jack Britton at tackle helped tremendously. "There was no doubt that Jack made a big difference," said Wood. "The kids just like the feeling of knowing he's in there. Britton paired with 224-lb. Jim McKeever, the other tackle, to anchor the line."

The ebb and flow continued into the fourth period. About the four-minute mark, the losers made their deepest penetration of the day to the THS 22. It was set up by Len Santoro who recovered a Princeton punt for the fourth time on the Tornado 36. Fullback Dick

TOO HIGH IN THE SKY: One of four PHS passes that went awry on Saturday against Trenton is this one which came in the third quarter. The intended receiver is Brian Smithy and Bruce Davis (22), the defender. Tailback Bill Aiken overthrew the attempted aerial. (Staff Photo)

Aiken carried for a first down to the 23. Aiken then drove to the 22 and cries of "hold that line" were heard for the first time. However, a 15-yard penalty and a fumbled pitchout killed the drive.

After an exchange of punts, THS started from its own 34. Three plays netted two yards. On a fourth and eight situation, Tim Masick threw a screen pass to Dick Botts for a first down on the 46. Only 45 seconds remained.

Penalties Hurt. Two passes were broken up by PHS defenders but, on the second aerial attempt, the Little Tigers were accused of roughing the passer. The penalty moved the ball to the 38. Then an incredible run by Randy Fryar in which he reversed his field several times, eluding tacklers with each "zag," finally ended up on the 42 for a six-yard advance. Four seconds left.

Botts drove up the middle for 7 to the 25. En route, his face mask was grabbed and the automatic 15-yard penalty carried the ball to the 10. The timekeeper informed Coach Wood that one second remained. Botts then dropped back to the PHS 17 and kicked a 27-yard field goal.

The kick was high and from an angle. From the sidelines it was hard to tell if it was true, but it was. And it was true that PHS had been defeated in the final second, although the stunned Little Tigers' crestfallen Dick Wood, and the Didn't Expect Kick. "I don't know what we could have done on that last play except have our ends rush a little more," Wood commented. We knew Botts was a good extra-point kicker but we didn't think he could kick it that far.

"We didn't expect a kick. We thought they would pass. Look how many times they had passed on fourth down. If we had all rushed in to try to block a field goal, we would have looked silly if it were a pass."

Though play throughout the game was bruising, PHS escaped with three injuries, none serious. Fullback Ed Mueller, who played an outstanding game defensively and on one occasion came up to tackle two Trenton runners in succession for losses, was cut out the next day. Jay Davidson, a center, was spiked on the hand, and tackle Alton Ahelson sustained an ankle twist.

Coach Wood cited the play of McKeever and Britton in the line and that of a newcomer, Ray Ballenger, at end. A junior, Ballenger never played before but Wood reported that he turned in an aggressive game and "really bottled in those ends." Larry Madden, defensive safetyman for the Blue and White, also elicited praise from Wood for knocking down several THS aerials. "His play was one of our better points," said Wood.

CAN HUN BREAK JINX?

In Test With Tower Hill? If football contests were only three quarters in duration, the Hun School would be undefeated. As it is, Hun will oppose Tower Hill here on Saturday at 2:30, still looking for its first victory.

In its first three outings this season, the Red and Black has carried a lead into the last period only to lose out by the final whistle. Instead of 3-0, its record is 0-2-1. This fourth-quarter jinx continued Saturday when Germantown Friends came from behind with less than four minutes to play to upend a favored Red and Black squad 6-2.

Hun coach Hawley Waterman reported that he "didn't know much" about Tower Hill, adding that Hun hadn't been able to scout the Wilmington, Del., school. "Generally, they are very good and well-coached," he said.

Each team has a strong incentive to win Saturday. Hun wants that first victory. Coach Bob DeGroat of Tower Hill would like to avenge an upset by Hun last year in front of the Wilmington followers. Hun's 14-12 victory marked the first time a Hun eleven had beaten Tower Hill and the first time the losers had been defeated on their home gridiron in six years.

Waterman revealed he had talked by telephone to DeGroat, who told him that his team "no longer had the horses to win." (Tower Hill was a 40-6 victim of Malvern last night. "I don't know anything about horses," Waterman commented. "I just hope we can do something and win."

First Half Scoreless. Against Germantown, Hun dominated the play throughout the first half. "We had all the statistics—and all the penalties," lamented Waterman. "They didn't have one."

On three occasions Hun was inside the Quaker 10 but failed to score. "We did all kinds of stupid things, thunks an experienced team just doesn't do," Waterman added.

In the third period, Hun scored its only points when Lonnie Kaplan broke through and blocked a Quaker punt. The ball rolled out of the end zone and Hun, which recovered it, received only a two-point safety.

Using a modified two-planet system, improved by Waterman, the visitors won the slim lead hold up. With the afternoon heat becoming a factor, Waterman attempted to conserve the strength of his regulars by using his sophomores on defense and the varsity only on offense. "Those 'Little Shavers' stopped them cold," said Waterman.

Crucial Play Goes. With less than four minutes to play, the home team—led by a new quarterback—began a long drive. The turning point came on a crucial third and eight situation. The Quaker quarterback back to pass, was trapped behind the line but he eluded his would-be tackler and ran for the first down.

Two long passes carried Germantown to the Hun three from where Phil Schulte kicked over on his first try. With less than 90 seconds left, Hun drove from its own 20 to the victors' 35 before time ran out. Ed Sellon scampered 35 yards in the last-ditch march.

LARRY I'VE PEDDIE. Seeking fourth win, The undefeated Lawrenceville football team will be seeking its fourth victory Saturday when it travels to Hightstown for a 2:30 game against Peddie. The Larks defeated Phillips Academy of Andover, Mass., last Saturday, 14-6.

The Red and Black moved 85 yards in seven plays for its first touchdown, which came in the second quarter after Andover had been forced to punt. Eddie Orvald passed to Mike Sam Phillip on fourth down to win from the five yard line for the score.

The second Lawrenceville scoring drive, which came in the third period, covered 92 yards in 17 plays. John 67, who had been moved out of the line from four yards out for the touchdown, laid the score for the two-point conversion.

Andover struck back in the last quarter. With quarterback Jack Morrison doing the passing and halfback Don Hootstein receiving, the visitors went on a TD drive that averaged 57 yards in 11 plays. Hootstein crossed the goal on a two-yard run.

Andover blocked a Lawrenceville punt at the visitor's 30-yard line with a muntle to play Morrison passed to Hootstein, moving the ball to the 12. Morrison's pass attempt on the last play of the game fell incomplete.

RUGBY CLUB PLAYS

Reeds For League Season. The Princeton Rugby Club will play the Baltimore Rugby Club on Saturday at 10:15 on Fitzpatrick Field. The Princeton squad will field two teams, and the second game will be at 11:30.

The Tiger ruggers opened their fall campaign last Saturday with a victory over Dartmouth in New York, 5-0. At the same time the "B" team was trouncing Fordham, 10-0. The fall season is a preliminary to league play, which will start in the spring.

The club has scheduled "A" and "B" games on Friday, November 2, against Dartmouth Saturday, November 10, against Harvard, and Saturday, November 17, against Villanova. All these are home games.

The club is composed primarily of experienced men. The rugby team, which is not officially sanctioned by the University, won eight games last year, losing only to Dartmouth and Amherst. This season marks the 22nd year of rugby football at Princeton.

REGATTA SATURDAY
"TD ROLL" Scheduled. Some 40 to 50 racing dinghies will take part Saturday on Lake Carnegie in the annual Touchdown Boat Regatta. Entries are accepted from all sections of the state in the event sponsored by the Carnegie Sailing Club.

In Sunday's weekly regatta, John Reeder was the victor, finishing first twice and compiling 26.9 points. Aubrey Hudson, 3d, was his crew. Others competing: Walt Foster, 1st, one first; Dexter Miller, 18.4; Bob Wellie and Bub

Nicklaus Six Under Par

Playing over the two-year-old Pike Brook Country Club at Belle Mead Sunday, U.S. Open champion Jack Nicklaus fired a 66 in an exhibition golf match staged for the benefit of the Somerset County Heart Fund. Some 300 spectators were present as 1962's biggest money winner bettered par by six strokes.

Wes Ellis of Mountain Ridge, New Jersey State champion, carded a 67, which included seven birdies. Nicklaus and Al Bachm, Raritan Valley Country Club champion, defeated Bill Anderson, another top amateur, 2 and 1.

Nicklaus' powerful tee shots and fine iron play dominated the day's action. He followed a four-hole drive with a five iron to reach the green on the 46th hole, and was only one yard short of driving the 17th—205 yards slightly uphill.

Wilson, each 16.0 and nine first; Tom Huntington, 10.0.

BOWLING NOTES

Baldino Moves Up. Joe Baldino bowled a 207 game and took two out of three contests to move into a first-place tie in the Individual Classic League. Mike Baldino, winning only one game, shared the top spot with Baldino. Both had 14 records.

Bill Rodefeld swept his three games and advanced to the third position, one-half game behind the leaders. Bill Bahrie recorded the league's high game, 222, and high series, 617, to win his three games and move into a tie for fourth with Guido Zinetti, a game out of first.

In "A" League action, Grover advanced its lead over Averano Construction to six points. Cooper and Schafer, with 14 points, failed to win a game and dropped eight points off the pace.

Dick Fowler rolled the high individual game of 221 and the high series of 573 to lead Averano to take three-game team honors, with a total of 2627 pins. Jack Stochowicz bowled a 299 in the league's only other 200 game.

Jurston, led by Baldino's 632 series, held onto first place in the "B" League. Kase Kleuser, won two of three games and Campus Tots swept three to narrow the leader's margin to two points. Baldino, also, had the league's high game of 244. Other outstanding performances were turned in by Milton Shinn, 219; Dick Edwards, 215; Mike Zecola and Tony Fama, 212 each; and Frank Maddalon, 210.

Lawrenceville won two of three contests to break a tie and take sole possession of first place in the county Firemen's League. With 26 points, Lawrenceville leads Belle Mead by two points and Hook and Ladder 1, by four. Ken Luck bowled a 237, 200 and 299 for the high set of 626 and the league's only two games that bettered the 200 mark. Bill Whalley and Mike Knipfner each set one pin short of a 200 score.

The Reformers maintained their one-game lead over Para Lab with a total of 11 victories. Tiger Garage advanced to third place, three games off the pace and a game ahead of National Bank, the Princeton Elks and the Crescents. Bill Dumble's 211 game was the only score to surpass 200.

In the newly-formed Princeton High School Junior League, the Giants, Bears and 48ers each won three games to share the lead. The Packers, Eagles and Vikings were in a three-way tie for fourth, game out of first. Fred Campbell, with a 188, accounted for the league's high game.

INFORMAL PLAY PLANNED
In YMCA Basketball, The men's basketball program at the Princeton YMCA will be begun Tuesday, November 13, and continue through February. Play has been scheduled for Tuesday, Thursday evenings from 8 to 10 p.m. in the gymnasium of Witherspoon School.

The evening sessions are designed to provide informal competition and pick-up games. More formal play will be provided by the Y's Research and Industrial League, which is now organizing.

The deadline for entering league teams is Thursday, October 25. Play will begin the third week in November. Games will be either Tuesday or Wednesday evenings. Six teams have begun organizing. They are FMC, ETS, RCA Labs, RCA Astro, Sannino AC and the YMCA team.

ASSORTED POTENTIAL BUYS:

1. Rugged individualists or fanatics finally accept privacy. Take note! This contemporary house in the woods (fine area) has just been REDUCED FOR QUICK SALE TO $42,500. Pine boards & batten, flagstone & white-washed brick, railroad ties & white gravel, glass walls & dogwood — get the feel of it! It's fun, easily expandable and the land alone is worth a good $20,000.

2. Once overpriced because of decorating need (wiring, piping, etc. are good), this basically lovely OLD COLONIAL has been so ENORMOUSLY REDUCED that it could almost be called underpriced. Five bfrms, 4 baths, 4 fireplaces (one in the master b.r.), old floorboards, large barn, 5 acres (more available), estate area — at $40,000 for all this what's a little decorating?

3. For people to whom space, schooling and budget are important, here is a 3 year old, 4 bdrm split in a neighboring community with excellent schooling that might be a steal. (Owner transferred, must sell, etc.) Modern kitchen, rec. rm., good condition, LARGE ASSIGNABLE G.I. MORTGAGE. Asking $24,500. Lower offer based on quick closing might take.

TWO-LINE TEASERS

North of P'ton. Small ranch. Sep. din. rm., dry basement. Lovely high land makes expansion worthwhile. $12,500

Hopewell home built when builders really built! Stone and masonry construction. Big liv. rm., 4 bdrms. $90,000

Lake area new listing, 4 bdrm. house priced lower than comparable homes. Rec. rm., extra special lot. $39,500

New West End listing. Tower built 5 bdrm., 3 1/2 bath home. Lovely pool, perfect condition, extras! $72,900

Early Princeton charmer. West End Borough. Secluded, easy care grounds. Good condition 3 or 4 bdrms. $55,000

PROPERTIES of every type from $20,000

RENTALS, commercial, residential. From $90.

Can it be the trees?

Decidedly. Towering oaks and pines, majestic hickories, flowering dogwoods abound at Pine Knoll in Lawrence Township. The reason: this was a famous tree nursery and the trees will remain. The soil is rich, the terrain gently rolling, the elevation one of the highest in the state. Next door to the Green Acres Golf Course. An elementary school

Should you live in an apartment ?

Maybe you're one of those people who wouldn't be caught dead living in a house. You like the busy, compact life that goes with an apartment. You're a born apartment dweller and there's no sense in fighting your natural instincts.

But if you like the privacy of an individual dwelling, a haven from the daily pressures which beset us all, you should seriously consider owning your own home. Especially if yours is a growing family.

Consider the advantages. You'll be raising your family in an environment which affords them plenty of room to play . . . and to grow. Plenty of room for quiet moments or lively games which don't intrude on adult activities. Plus the safety provided only by a private back yard.

Financially, home ownership makes good sense too. By substituting stable monthly mortgage payments for monthly rent payments, you protect yourself against future rent raises and achieve security against inflation. As a home owner, you get important income tax advantages not available to apartment dwellers. And a home furnishes the cornerstone in building an estate for your financial independence. When the mortgage is paid up, you have a tangible asset of real worth instead of a pile of worthless rent receipts.

... or a house ?

Makes sense? Home ownership is even more sensible at Village on the Green. Here is a community set in one of New Jersey's most desirable locations: Ewingville. Every home has extra-large rooms, loads of closet space, well-planned layouts . . . all on a half-acre plot with a spacious back yard. And everything is so convenient. Boating and fishing, golf, one session schools, houses of worship and diversified shopping are only minutes away.

If you are now living in, or considering, a two or three bedroom apartment, chances are you're paying for all the advantages of Village on the Green. Why not live there and actually get them?
